President's Message

I wonder if any of you had the same feeling I did as we watched the federal budget events of the last few days unfold: How much I miss Ronald Reagan!

You may remember him saying, "We don't have a trillion-dollar-debt because we haven't taxed enough; we have a trillion-dollar-debt because we spend too much."

Because of the resilience of those in our party, we have the beginning of a plan to bring down the deficit and save our children and grandchildren's future. I say a beginning because the real work lies ahead in the coming months as we once again fight Obama and the Democrats for the 2012 budget. Obama is already working his 2012 campaign and in the next few days he will be delivering his plan for next year's budget. He wants to convince the electorate that we can't solve the budget crisis without raising taxes – his minions are already out saying that Republicans are placing an undue burden on the backs of the poor and elderly by cutting spending and entitlements and are refusing to have the "rich" pay their fair share of taxes. So it's spending cuts vs. higher taxes all over again, even though the Democrats voted in December to continue the Bush tax rates for another two years.

I believe most of us want the deficit to come down in the same way we handle a deficit in our own family budgets. We cut the "fat." Most families look at where their money is being spent and begin to cut the non-essentials first - like vacations, eating out, reducing cable and internet expenses, putting off buying un-necessary clothing, etc., with food and medicine expenses cut last. What do the Democrats do first? They threaten to cut essential services to the poor and elderly because the politicians know that will create a public outcry. Then they insist we raise taxes. When was the last time you went to your employer and told him your credit cards were maxed out and demanded he increase your pay?

Our job over the next few months is to make sure our elected officials know we will support their efforts to have a thorough review of the need of each and every governmental agency that we currently fund. Redundancy is OUT - Efficiency is IN. And, within those agencies that are deemed necessary that their expenses are monitored. We, the People, are the ones funding all expenses and we expect our money to be spent wisely.

Ronald Reagan also said: "We have long since discovered that nothing lasts longer than a temporary government program."

We are just a few months away from the official beginning of the 2012 Election. Stay strong; we have a big job ahead of us. One we can accomplish together and with God's help.
